Two Scavengers in a Truck, Two Beautiful in a Mercedes-

The poem describes four people held together for a moment at a red traffic light. There are two scavengers - garbagemen ' on their way home' after their round - and two ' beautiful people ', an elegant couple ' on the way to his architect's office '. The garbagemen's day ends where the young couple's begins. The poet compares the two pairs in detail, then seems to ask - at the end of the poem - whether America really is a ' democracy '.
