After describing the characteristics of charity, including suffering long and enduring all things, Mormon followed up in the same way that the apostle Paul did in his first epistle to the Corinthians. He said, "Charity never faileth" (Moroni 7:46). (See 1 Corinthians 13:8.) Paul contrasted charity with several gifts of the Spirit- prophecies, tongues, and...

As Mormon began a sermon to a group church members, he acknowledged that he was only able to speak to them because of God's grace and His will, manifest in "the gift of his calling unto me" . In an earlier chapter, Moroni spoke of "the gifts and callings of God" (Moroni 3:4), but here, Mormon identifies his calling itself as a gift.

So, how does the Book of Mormon compare to the Bible? Manuscript Evidence for the Bible and Book of Mormon. The most damning piece of evidence against the book of Mormon, in my opinion, is the lack of manuscript evidence. Compared against the biblical manuscript data, the book of Mormon pales in comparison.
