The construction sections show how to construct the methods from scratch using Python. The implementation sections demonstrate how to apply the methods using packages in Python like scikit-learn, statsmodels, and tensorflow. Why this Book ¶

Introduction — Machine Learning from Scratch
Stochastic Hill climbing is an optimization algorithm. It makes use of randomness as part of the search process. This makes the algorithm appropriate for nonlinear objective functions where other local search algorithms do not operate well. It is also a local search algorithm, meaning that it modifies a single solution and searches the relatively local area of the search space until the
